Caterham Super Seven

Caterham Super Seven – Purist Lightweight Construction with 200 HP

A Caterham Super Seven from 08/1992, combining classic British sports car aesthetics with a powerful and technically interesting drivetrain. With just 31,850 km and only two previous owners, this Super Seven offers a particularly exciting proposition for enthusiasts and collectors.

Power comes from an Opel CXE 2.0 16V producing 147 kW (200 hp), combined with an individual throttle body setup. Together with the Caterham's low weight, this results in an exceptionally direct and intense driving experience. The power delivery of the 16V engine and its immediate throttle response perfectly complement the uncompromising character of the Super Seven.

The Caterham has also been set up with sporty driving in mind when it comes to the suspension. The fitted Nitron suspension provides precise handling and further enhances the agile and direct characteristics of the vehicle.

Particularly distinctive is the classic two-tone design of the Super Seven. The front body section and wheel arches are finished in British Racing Green, while the bonnet and chassis are made from unpainted aluminium. The combination of the deep green and exposed aluminium gives the Caterham its unmistakable, authentic lightweight look and emphasises its technical heritage.

The Super Seven represents a form of sports car construction that is rarely found today: minimal weight, maximum directness and no unnecessary compromises. Here, the focus is not on equipment, but on the immediate experience behind the wheel.

With its low mileage, only two previous owners, 200 hp 16V engine, individual throttle body setup and Nitron suspension, this
